Re: Dominion Energy
Smart Meters

Dear Ms. Wilson:

I am enclosing another article that was in the South Hill Enterprise, South Hill Virginia. Believe this was in their April 7th weekly newspaper. It seems some of the Dominion Energy customers are keeping close tabs on this company. It seems OSHA refuses to regulate Dominion on the installation of these costly meters even when the Virginia State Corporation Commission said these meters did not make sense for the customers. This is the problem when customers end up paying for unnecessary equipment that is just a money- making project for their company and the State of Virginia does nothing to help the customers.

You might want to keep this in the Dominion Energy file for future reference since Dominion Energy will most likely be our power company for years to come.

Sincerely yours,

Elizabeth F. Wilson
